

Talk Continues Of Third Party For Segregation

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rumblings of a third party movement continued today in the South.

A highly-placed political source there predicted the Democratic national convention will nominate a candidate and write a platform unacceptable to segregationists.

The knowledgeable southern politician said the revolt would be along the lines of the states rights Democratic party of 1948. That ticket took four southern states, partly by capturing the existing Democratic machinery.

Former Gov. Fielding L. Wright of Mississippi, 1948 states rights Democratic vice presidential nominee, voiced support for a third party. But Mississippi Gov. J. P. Coleman, who recently defeated Wright for the governorship, said he has "always been opposed to starting a third party of any kind."

Kefauver's sweeping victory in Minnesota spurred the third party talk. Many southern politicians oppose him because he has gone much farther on the racial question than most of his fellow southerners in Congress.

Man Needed Before
Resources Can Mean Anything

A MAN IS NOT WITHOUT HONOR. "Resource" is a much misunderstood word," writes Glen Jones in the latest Kiwanis Bulletin, and the rest of his article titled "A Man is Not Without Honor," continues:

"Ordinarily we confine our concept of resources to material things. 'Natural resources' has come to mean minerals, forests, streams and such things as are to be found in the creation around us, but if these things are seriously examined we are likely to find that such things are not resources at all but merely materials which hold the world together.

"The richness of the American Continent lay undisturbed for thousands of years without any significance whatever until the energy, ingenuity and intelligence of man began to operate upon it.

"Black rock became coal only when man's intelligence discovered how to use it. Standing trees became lumber when man discovered the principles of construction. It was man who made resources out of mere materials.

"Often we wonder why industries do not rise upon our beds of coal and limestone, why standing trees do not give rise to furniture factories, why beds of clay do not breed ceramic kilns.

"The answer is simple. Those things are busy at their task of molding the world together until a man devotes his time, his energy, and his intelligence to making them perform another function.

"Maybe such a man is here among us. If so, then he is our real resource and we should search for him, give him aid, and develop his abilities."

Wasn't that fine?

THE TRUMPET last week got a third place award in a national contest for school papers sponsored by Columbia university in New York.

I've just received the latest edition of this paper, published by the students of Harrisburg Junior high school. Here is part of a sports story it contained, written by Sandra Roberts and Patty Sullivan:

"On Thursday, March 8, the teachers played the Junior High Varsity basketball team.

"Even though the game was close the teachers, with the help of a professional, upset the game, 45 to 40.

"The teachers called in a 'ringer'—Pete Gardner (county superintendent of schools)—who helped win the game.

"There was another new member on the team, Mr. Yates. He played a good game even though he spent half his time sitting on the floor."

NANCY ANDERSON WROTE: "If someone were to ask, 'What does Easter mean to you?' we probably would answer, 'New clothes, a trip, hiding Easter eggs for my little brother or sister, and the resurrection of Christ.'"

"The trouble is, most people think of it in that order, with the resurrection of Christ last. We should make room for it in the front of our minds, though.

"If Christ had not risen, Easter would be just an ordinary Sunday, but most of all, we would be without any hope of eternal life.

"When we put Christ first, we see Easter in its proper light. Looking at it in this way, Easter will take on a whole new meaning."

Applegate Claims a Hated U. S. Losing Friends to Russia throughout World

Correspondent Held Prisoner of Reds in Asia Speaks Here

"The United States is losing the battle with Russia for friends throughout the world," members of the Southern Illinois Dinner Club were told Thursday night by Richard Applegate, foreign news correspondent and world traveler.

"At the close of World War II it was a proud feeling to be an American and walk through the streets of foreign countries," the speaker declared. "In Asia and other countries Americans were the most respected people in the world. Now we are the most hated."

Continuing, Mr. Applegate stated that just as long as our foreign policy is based on expediency and not on moral values, we would continue to slide downhill in the eyes of the world.

"The United States, a nation 'born of revolution,' claims to be a freedom loving nation, but we are often found on the side of the colonial powers when subjected nations attempt to gain their freedom," the audience was told. "We deny to others the freedom we claim for ourselves. And people throughout the world know this."

Prisoner 18 Months

Mr. Applegate is a war correspondent who was held prisoner 18 months by the Chinese Reds, more than seven of these months in solitary confinement. He was NBC correspondent and spent 22 months in Korea and for four and a half years was Southeast Asia manager for the United Press, with headquarters in Singapore.

During his years as a foreign correspondent Mr. Applegate said he has seen the trend away from the United States and the Free World toward Russia and Communism. His story was from personal experiences and observations.

During his months as a prisoner of the Chinese Reds, Mr. Applegate was "brainwashed" and finally "confessed" to crimes and knowledge of germ warfare being waged by the United States against other countries.

He is now travelling throughout the nation to tell the story of his experiences and to expose the inhuman methods of the Communists.

In Boat When Captured

Mr. Applegate, with five friends, were sailing on his 42-foot yacht in the international waters of an inlet of the China Sea when his boat was captured and all aboard taken prisoner by a Chinese gunboat. This was three years ago.

He told his audience last night of the months of torture in solitary confinement; of the constant questioning and demands that he "confess" of being allowed to read and hear nothing but Red propaganda; of threats of death and threats against his mother.

"After months of this treatment you feel your mind slipping away," he declared. "You are willing to believe almost anything."

He revealed that he finally made a complete "confession" after being told his mother was in the hands of the Chinese Reds and that she would suffer unless the confession was made. He said:

"I made a confession about germ warfare to end all confessions."

Saline county residents purchased a total of $183,191 in Series E and H United States saving bonds in the month of February, 1956, according to figures received from the Treasury Department by Walter Bargman of Harrisburg, volunteer savings bonds county chairman.

Total sales of both Series in the state of Illinois were $45,635,120 during the month, according to T. Merrell Paul, State Sales Director of the U. S. Savings Bonds Division. This represents an increase of 5.7 percent over sales for February last year, and is 9.5 percent of national sales, which totaled $467,047,000.

Easter Week Liturgy Changed by Pope Pius in Big Ritual Overhaul

By LOUIS CASSELS

United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP)—The most sweeping change of Roman Catholic ritual in four centuries will go into effect next week.

The entire Catholic liturgy for Easter Week — most important week of the church year — has been revised by decree of Pope Pius XII. The reforms are designed to make the ancient Easter rites more meaningful to modern man.

The new services provide for greatly increased participation by the congregation in acts of worship formerly carried out mainly by the officiating clergy. English

Adlai Admits He Failed to Get Ideas Across

Minnesota Defeat Makes Him Want to Try All the Harder

By JAMES KLOCKENKEMPER
United Press Staff Correspondent

DECATUR, Ill. (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson, seeking support in his native Illinois, admitted Thursday night that he failed to "get across" to the voters in the Minnesota presidential primary.

Stevenson came to Decatur to make his first campaign speech since his upset loss to Sen. Estes Kefauver in Tuesday's Minnesota primary.

His speech had been planned to boost the organization Democratic state ticket. But that was before Stevenson's defeat. It turned out to be Stevenson's opening gun in the April 10 Illinois primary and gave his downstate Illinois backers a chance to show they're still behind him.

An enthusiastic overflow crowd jammed the hall. Many of them told Stevenson they hadn't planned to come, but changed their minds because of the Minnesota landslide.

Stevenson responded with "a personal word" about how it feels to lose when you expected to win.

"When, as a candidate for public office, you believe in something and you believe in it strongly and you try to say it to people — and there is a round in an election battle, as I have in Minnesota — you don't feel injustice or even defeat," he said.

"What you feel is that somehow you haven't been able to get your convictions across. And it makes you all the more anxious to get out and try all the harder to say what you feel so strongly."

He said he would now wait the enforcement of the ordinances.

A representative of the ministers said, "We will now await the enforcement of the ordinances."

Former Argentine
President Dead

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The government today ordered 10 days national mourning for ex-president Eduardo Lonardi, who died in a military hospital here Thursday night at the age of 59.

The body of Lonardi, who served briefly as president following the overthrow of Juan D. Peron, will lie in state today and early Saturday in the Chaparral Catholic School. The funeral, with full military and presidential honors, will be held at 10 a. m. Saturday.

Car Not So Tired When Left on Road

A man who left his car parked along the side of a road while he went to work with others was minus two tires when he returned.

Victim was Roy Duncan, who lives in the south part of the county.

Duncan told county officers he parked his car Wednesday morning on a gravel road just off Route 34 at the foot of Blackman hill south of Mitchellville to go to his work at a spar mine in Hardin county with some other men.

When he returned that evening a new tire on his left front wheel and his spare tire, plus some tools, were missing.

Brothel Ban Promised At Danville

DANVILLE, Ill. (AP)—Danville ministers sat back today and waited for Mayor Girth N. Hicks to clean up the city's bawdy houses.

Hicks, who makes no bones about the presence of prostitution in Danville, promised Thursday to do something about it.

His pledge was drawn up by the ministers themselves after a meeting which Hicks had tried to head off.

The furor started last week, when the commander of nearby Chanute Air Force Base complained that eight of his men had picked up venereal disease in Danville brothels.

Hicks snorted that the commander was a "publicity seeking, swivel chair" general. He told a reporter "you know as well as I do" that there is prostitution in Danville.

The Danville Ministerial Assn. then descended on City Hall and demanded that Hicks take "immediate steps" to enforce the laws and "honor your oath of office."

Hicks at first tried to avoid the delegation, but finally sat down with two ministers who drafted a statement for him.

In it he and the City Council promised to "do all within our power under the law to enforce the ordinances of the city on prostitution and sale of liquor to minors in Danville."

A representative of the ministers said, "We will now await the enforcement of the ordinances."

Chrysler to Test Gas Turbine Auto Coast to Coast

DETROIT (AP)—Chrysler engineers will put their gas turbine powered automobile to a milestone test next week by trying to drive it 3,000 miles cross-country from New York to Los Angeles.

If the car performs flawlessly under the varied driving conditions from Coast to Coast, the dream of doing away with conventional piston-type automobile engines will be a big step closer to reality.

The engine, already tested extensively in Michigan, is mounted in a 1956 Plymouth sedan. The car will leave New York at 8:30 a. m. (CST) Monday.

It is scheduled to arrive in Los Angeles about Friday after traveling through New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California.

The car will be driven by teams of Chrysler engineers who will study the performance, endurance and efficiency of the turbine powered engine under actual road conditions.

Lack of Two-Bit Parts Has Grounded Planes, Report Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—A congressional report on a nine-month investigation of military buying today charged:

"Allegedly excessive profits on defense orders."

"Tons of military equipment 'lost in the mud.'"

"Planes out of commission for lack of 25-cent parts."

"Alleged political pressure on an Air Force parachute contract."

The revelations were made in a 98-page report by the staff of the House Military Appropriations subcommittee. Many of the cases cited occurred recently, but some involved contracts extending back five or six years to the Korean War.

Syngman Rhee to Run Third Time; Petitioned in Blood

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—President Syngman Rhee in an announcement that surprised no one said today he was bowing to public will and would run for a third term.

The 80-year-old Rhee said he had received more than 22,000 letters and petitions signed by more than 3,000,000 persons calling on him to run.

"I was horrified," he said, "to discover that some of the petitions were written in blood."

Big 3 Confab on Mideast Crisis In May at Paris

Estes Howdies His Way Around S. California

Wants State's 68
Votes at Democratic National Convention

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Sen. Estes Kefauver brings his "Howdy" campaign to the voters of populous Southern California today.

The Tennessee Democrat was in the second day of his 5-day visit to the Golden State—a visit he hoped would yield him 68 votes in the Democratic presidential convention.

The California primary is June 5. It will be the last one to pit him against Adlai Stevenson before the convention makes its decision.

Kefauver arrived in San Francisco Thursday, showing the politician's traditional eagerness to shake as many hands as he could. He even fed candy to babies.

San Franciscans appeared to warm up to the senator's folksy approach. He strolled down Montgomery Street in the heart of the financial district, greeting everyone in sight—policemen, cab drivers, office workers and business executives.

To everyone who crossed his path, Kefauver said:

"I'm Senator Kefauver. I hope you'll help me."

Gay Brashear Resigns State Post

Gay Brashear today announced his resignation from state service to accept private employment.

Mr. Brashear, who has 11 years' experience with the State of Illinois as investigator for the State Sales Tax department, has accepted employment as field representative in this district with the Weldon Birch Accounting agency.

Mr. Brashear has already started his work with the Birch agency, whose headquarters are in El Dorado.

Preacher Convicted In Boycott

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Defense attorneys said today they would fight the case of a mild-mannered young Negro minister convicted of conspiring to boycott Montgomery city buses "all the way to the U. S. Supreme Court."

Circuit Judge Eugene Carter Thursday convicted the Rev. Martin Luther King, 27, of starting "a fire he couldn't stop" in leading a boycott that has crippled the city transit company for more than 15 weeks.

Carter ordered the accused leader of the boycott to pay $1,000 in fines and court costs or serve 366 days at hard labor under a little-used Alabama law making it a misdemeanor to enter a conspiracy to boycott a business.

The defense announced it would appeal the decision to the Alabama Circuit Court of Appeals, and the trials of 89 other Negro defendants facing identical charges were ordered continued until final disposition of King's appeal.

After Five Years, Couple Wins Adoption of Japanese Child, 8

CHICAGO (AP)—An Air Force sergeant and his wife have finally won adoption of a small Japanese-American girl after a special act of Congress allowed her in the United States.

Five years of efforts by M. Sgt. Richard G. Hatcher, 44, and his wife, Amy, 43, to adopt 8-year-old Theresa Hara ended in success Thursday when County Judge Otto B. Kerner approved an adoption decree. It will become final April 26.

The Hatcher's first saw the girl and her mother when the sergeant was stationed in Japan in 1950.

"They were both in rags," the Negro sergeant said, "and we felt sorry for them."

The Air Force couple learned Theresa was the daughter of an American soldier who had vanished.

Seek Millions for Missile Launching Site at Hanna City

HANNA CITY, Ill. (AP)—The Air Force is prepared to spend 4½ to 5 million dollars on construction of a proposed guided missile launching site here, it was announced Thursday.

Lt. Col. Walter Morrow said location of the site here and spending of the money was "definite," except for approval by Congress. The construction money is contained in a two-billion-dollar defense bill before Congress, he said.

Morrow is chief installation engineer for the site selection branch of the Air Force. He told a news conference here and a survey team from the Pentagon were here to start a five-day survey to find 68 to 115 additional acres for the launching site in the area of the present 44-acre radar station here. Hanna City is near Peoria.

Unveil Missile Master—Big Nike Launcher

To Install Them at Major Industrial,
Military Centers

FT. MEADE, Md. (AP)—The Army today unveiled the "Missile Master"—a huge electronic brain whose lightning-like action can launch scores of Nike guided missiles against enemy air raiders.

Army Secretary Wilbur M. Brucker said that missile masters will be installed at major industrial, population and military centers to control the fire of Nike batteries against attackers.

The secretary created a flurry by asserting that the electronic brain can detect aircraft "and missiles," and control counterattacks on such invaders.

Revise At First

Army officers conducting a demonstration here at first refused to say what kind of missiles Brucker referred to. But eventually it became clear that he meant the winged types that travel about the same speed as modern bombers. He did not mean, it was clear, ballistic missiles against which defenses still have not been devised.

The Army said that plans for constructing Missile Master facilities throughout the country are included in its program for the fiscal year beginning next July 1 and are currently being considered in Congress.

It made public its plan at a time when the Senate Armed Services Committee has raised questions about the comparative effectiveness of the Army's Nike and the Talos missile developed by the Navy and planned for later use in continental defense by the Air Force.

Sources Say to Map Out United Stand at Meet

London to Produce Stand-By Plan for Action If War Comes

WASHINGTON (AP)—Diplomatic sources said today the Big Three foreign ministers will meet in Paris in May to map a united stand on the Middle East crisis.

Reports from London said Britain's foreign secretary will be armed with a stand-by plan for military action in case the Arab-Israeli tensions explode into war.

The United States hopes peace efforts by the United Nations Security Council will succeed. But it is seriously considering asking Congress to give it stand-by authority to use force, if necessary, if the U. N. fails.

The White House announced that a conference between President Eisenhower and his top diplomatic, defense and security advisers has been postponed until Saturday.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty denied that the session was a "crash meeting" on the Middle East crisis. He called it another in a series of "routine technical briefings on various phases of our American security program" and said the subjects to be discussed are of a "classified nature."

British Military Plan

"It does not in any way relate to the Mideast," he said.

Asked if it had anything to do with disarmament and aerial inspection, Hagerty said he was sorry but that he could say nothing more. He said the session was postponed until Saturday because some of the participants could not be on hand today.

Sources here and in London said the foreign ministers of Britain, France and the United States will confer on the Israeli-Arab dispute while attending the North Atlantic Treaty council meeting in Paris.

A British Foreign Office spokesman said in London that Britain has completed a military plan "which could be put rapidly into action" in event of an emergency.

He said it was hoped action could be taken through the U. N. but noted that a 1950 three-power declaration commits the three nations to guard both the Arabs and Israel against aggression by the other "within or without the United Nations."

For the moment, the United States is pinning its hopes on efforts by the U. N. Security Council to preserve the uneasy peace.

Dulles Studies Situation

But officials had discussed the possibility of asking Congress for stand-by authority to use force, if necessary, if the U. N.'s overtures fail.

Invited to Saturday's White House meeting were Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson; Undersecretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr.; Director Allen Dulles of the Central Intelligence Agency; Adm. Arthur M. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; Gen. Nathan F. Twining, Air Force chief of staff, and Donald A. Quarles, secretary of the Air Force.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles planned to devote his full attention to the Middle East crisis after winding up his extensive reports to Congress and the Nation on his Far Eastern tour.

Dulles will deliver a radio-TV report to the nation tonight (9:30 a. m. CST).

OUT OUR WAY

THE LOST LOVE

By WILLIAMS

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says:
Secretary Folsom Plots To Block Social Security Reforms.

WASHINGTON. — It's a strange combination, but a Democratic senator and a Republican cabinet officer have teamed up to block any more liberalization of the social security laws to help widows with disabled children, oldsters and white-collar workers. They are Sen. Harry Byrd of Virginia and Secretary Marion Folsom of health, education and welfare.

Byrd even went so far as to call a private meeting of the Republican members of the Senate Finance committee, a strange maneuver for a Democrat. He asked the Republicans to meet with Secretary Folsom and give him their pledge to hold the line against social security reforms.

At issue are amendments that would grant federal disability insurance for people over 50 years old, lower the retirement age for women from 65 to 62, provide continued survivor benefits to widows with disabled children over 18, and extend social security to more white-collar workers.

The House accepted these amendments by an overwhelming vote but they are now bottled in the Senate Finance committee, presided over by Byrd. Folsom has been careful not to take a public position against the reforms, but he has been pulling wires privately to block them.

Folsom used to be undersecretary of the Treasury and an executive of Eastman Kodak. Today he seems to be looking at social security as a finance man and a big business man rather than the head of a humanitarian department of government.

The proposed social security amendment would be financed by increasing the rate 1 per cent half to be contributed by the employers and half to be withheld from employees' pay checks. This would cost big corporations several million dollars, would cost an employee an extra $21 per year maximum.

IKE AGREES TO BOTTLE

Because it's an election year, the Eisenhower administration has ducked taking a public stand against the reforms. Instead, Folsom has put off testifying before the Finance committee four times.
He appeared yesterday.

Inside fact is that the Social Security Administration has already worked out plans to administer the new reforms, but Folsom has forbidden his subordinates to testify on this. How simple administration of the reforms would be is shown by the fact that 5,000 doctors are already determining disability for railroad workers' compensation without any trouble.

Last week, Folsom reported privately to President Eisenhower that the Republicans with Byrd's help would be able to bottle the social security amendments in the Senate Finance committee. Folsom went to the White House with Pennsylvania's grim Sen. Ed Martin, top Republican on the Finance committee, who also gave his assurances.

They promised Ike that the amendments would never come up on the Senate floor, but would be blocked with a minimum of publicity. They promised that the Republicans would vote solidly to kill the reforms and could count on Byrd's vote, plus another possible Democratic vote—Delaware Sen. Allen Frear's.

Some Republicans, facing re-election this year, may cave in, however, rather than be exposed to the glare of publicity.

SENATE SIDELIGHTS

New Jersey's conscientious Sen.
Clifford Case, a possible substitute for Vice President Nixon on the GOP ticket, has been dubbed
"the Adlai Stevenson of the Republican party." . . . Ohio's jolly Sen. George Bender seldom loses his temper, but he blew off steam the other day at his assistant, Mrs. C. D. Terry. The verbal explosion echoed through the Senate corridors. After taking dose of hot words, Mrs. Terry spat back:
"Don't speak to me like that, little man!" . . . Senate Democratic leader Lyndon Johnson's friends are excusing his stand on the natural gas bill because he's a Texan. His opponents argue, however, that he should give up the Senate leadership if he must put Texas oil ahead of the national interests. They are tired of Texans running both houses of Congress to suit the Texas oil-gas crowd . . .
Maryland's Sen. John Marshall
Butler, who looks like a startled robin, was gleeful over the news that Ike would run again. Butler's GOP seat is at stake. In the past, Butler has been more loyal to Senator McCarthy than President Eisenhower, but has now discovered, belatedly, that Ike's political pulling power is greater than Mc-Carthy's.

CAPITAL COMMENTS

Sen. Joe McCarthy, who has been cooking with gas lately, seems to have cooked his own goose. The Wisconsin whiz kid voted for his Texas millionaire friends instead of the folks back home on the natural gas bill. Reports from Wisconsin indicate this was the last straw; his constituents have had enough. Citizens who wouldn't dare speak against him two years ago are now openly suggesting that he move to Texas.
He is representing the Texas oil millionaires, they say, so he may as well live there . . . Example of how Wisconsin opinion has turned against McCarthy: "Time and the public's good sense have taken care of McCarthy," said editor
Roy Matson of the Madison State Journal, a longtime McCarthy supporter. "He's a dead pigeon."

Ike's I-will-run statement stimulated the stock market, but had a reverse effect on farm prices. The day after his announcement hog prices dropped as much as 25 cents a pound in some places . . .
Politicians studying Ike's TV statement noticed that he seemed to divorce himself from his own administration. Not once did he speak of "my administration."

Rather, he referred to himself as "president of all Americans," and spoke of the administration and himself as two separate entities.

Barney H. Carter, 89, life long resident of Cartersville, died Tuesday in the Holden hospital at Carbondale.

He was the son of Laban Carter who was one of the founders of Cartersville and was the person for whom the town was named.

Surviving are his wife, Arme-dia, one son, Laban, Cartersville, and a daughter, Mrs. Vinnie Smith, Price, Utah.

Funeral services were held today at 2 p. m. at the Hill funeral home in Cartersville. Dr. Marion E. Franks of Christopher conducted the funeral and burial was in the Oakwood cemetery.

Martha furnished sustenance for the body, but Mary eased the physical suffering and the spiritual weariness of One going directly to death on a cross.

Judas, who was a mercenary person and a thief as well, rebuked Mary for this foolish use of her valuable ointment. Jesus recognized Mary's act as a contribution to the spiritual well-being of man. He told Judas, in sum and substance, that the satisfaction of man's worldly hunger was less important than the recognition of spiritual values.

It is not enough to fast and think only of physical values during this Holy Week. We, like Mary, must kneel at the feet of Jesus, and find the way to ease the spiritual suffering of weary folk on their way toward a new life. In so doing, we shall find reward for ourselves.

Party for Mamie Eisenhower Called 'Most Wonderful'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower attended the "most wonderful" birthday party she ever had Thursday. It included a medley of her favorite songs and a special nationwide television show.

The party, given by wives of officials of the 61 independent government agencies, originally was scheduled for Mrs. Eisenhower's birthday last Nov. 14. But the party was delayed because of President Eisenhower's heart attack.

The First Lady, now 59 years old, sang along with some tunes, giggled at others, and dabbed her eyes at other old-time favorite melodies.

"It certainly did tear my heart-strings," she said.

Mrs. Eisenhower received an antique fan made of pierced mother of pearl and Venetian lace as a present. She dined on chicken and birthday cake.

After lunch, television sets scattered around the hotel ballroom were tuned in to a special birthday program staged by the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Singer Tony Martin showed pictures of Mrs. Eisenhower and her two sisters back in Iowa and Mrs. Eisenhower's wedding dress and inaugural gown. Martin and other singers then sang several of Mrs. Eisenhower's favorite songs.

"The party was most wonderful I've ever had," she said.

Better Boiler Builders Brag Bowls Britons

BUXTON, England (AP)—Ex-Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov strained relations with his British hosts Thursday night. He told them the Russians build boilers better than they do.

Malenkov, visiting a boiler factory, expressed surprise when told it took British workers 18 months to assemble one boiler.

He said it took only four months for Russian workers to assemble a boiler. But after looking it over he admitted the Russian boilers were only half as big as the British one.

Applegate Claims We're Losing Friends

Thought I might as well tell a big lie while 'confessing' and it seemed to please the Reds. I was released shortly afterward.

With Mr. Applegate at the time of his capture were two Americans and three Chinese. The two Americans have also been released, one Chinese was released, but his health was broken and he is now a hospital patient. The other Chinese are still held by the Reds.

Says Reds on March
In discussing the gains made by the Reds in recent years, Mr. Applegate said the Communists have control of one-third of the world's population and only a few years ago their control was extended to only one-sixth of the people of the world. And other large-population countries are leaning more toward Communism every day, it was said.

"The Reds are on the march. And we can't stop them until we turn from a policy of expediency and once again recognize moral values. We are losing the battle. It could be lost during our lifetime," Mr. Applegate warned his listeners.

Mrs. Mildred Johnson of Eldorado introduced the speaker. Rev. T. Leo Dodd gave the invocation and Rev. W. E. Hannegan the benediction.

Sebe Kelly, club president, announced a drive to double the club's membership and urged all members to make an effort to get at least one new member.

SHARON, Pa. (AP) — Only about 200 of the 6,500 employees at the Westinghouse Electric Corp. plant here returned to work today despite the lifting of picket lines for the first time in 158 days.

Members of Local 617 of the International Union of Electrical Workers were reluctant to return until the company and union finally decide what to do about nine fired strikers.

PATERSON, N. J. (AP) — Expert counsel on dice rolling came from an unexpected source in court Thursday.

A question arose as to whether a bet could be placed while the dice were rolling and the defense asked for a conference in the issue. Judge Howard Barrett said it was customary to bet only before shooting and added, "I am an authority on the matter."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, who backed the loser in Minnesota, said today that Adlai E. Stevenson and his sup-porters should exploit the lessons learned from defeat in the Minne-sota presidential primary.

The Minnesota Democrat be-longs to that school of Stevenson backers who insist that their can-didate was not hurt fatally by be-ing upset in Minnesota Tuesday by Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennes-see.

"Any defeat is a setback," Humphrey admitted in an inter-view. "But out of defeat we some-times learn. Stevenson supporters must recognize that he is now the underdog and show the same de-dicated zeal that Sen. Kefauver's have shown."

"Crucial Test" Coming

Humphrey expressed the belief that the "crucial test" between Stevenson and Kefauver will come in the California primary June 5. The two candidates for the Demo-cratic presidential nomination are also matched in Alaska April 24 and Florida May 29.

Kefauver already has resumed campaigning in California, and Humphrey said he expects both candidates to concentrate on that state.

Dr. Jarrett said in a strained voice, "I didn't touch him, I swear."

Van Horn turned to me. "Mr. Bennett, I think we had better talk with the mortician—what is his name?"

"Tweed," I said.

"Wilbur Tweed," the sheriff added sagely. "Right across the square." He pranced to the door and opened it.

Dr. Jarrett spoke to Van Horn in an oddly quiet voice. "I will be here, if you want me. I am not a—a quack. I have helped people, delivered babies, even saved lives. I have tried hard, but I am still struggling along, after eight years. Other men in my graduating class are rich, some of them already famous. But I am still like a beginner, just out of school. It—it's not fair that I should still be practicing in coun-try communities, but in the cities I—I was—well, I settled in a city first, in Wheeling, and—"

"Yes," Dr. Van Horn's gentle voice stopped him. "I know. I started in a city, too—New York. I almost starved. It was big time. No one knew me, I knew no one. Then I went to a small town and began my career. The people came to know me—and to trust me."

"I understand," Dr. Jarrett said. "Thank you."

And then Dr. Van Horn did a strange thing. He moved to Dr. Jarrett and placed a hand on his shoulder. "I was like you once. But I got over it. You will get over it, too, in time. If you do not get that job in Pittsburgh, con-tact me. I can use you on my staff—if you are interested."

"Thank you," Dr. Jarrett said again, his lips twitching. "I'll re-member it."

Dr. Jarrett's face was still pale, but there was a new shining light in his eyes. He stood very straight and there was only the slightest cruel twitch to his thin arrogant mouth.

Van Horn turned, nodded at me and the three of us went out. The sheriff closed the door and moved away down the hall. Van Horn shook his head slowly. "I have seen it before. It is tragic, but he can still be useful. No doctor's training should ever be wasted."

"Do you believe him?" I asked.

Because I am really a cynic at heart, and because in my work I never sentimental. And the mem-ory of a bullet slamming out of the night was still with me.

"I do not know," Van Horn said slowly. "I want to believe him." He gave me a sad and oddly twist-ed smile. "Let us hear what this Mr. Tweed has to say."

There were a few lights in the Tweed Funeral Home, including one at a front second story window. As we turned into the drive, I thought I saw a face at this win-dow, peering down at us from be-tween lace curtains, but I could have been wrong. The sheriff got out and opened the rear door of the sedan with a flourish. "Here we are." He waited politely until Van Horn and I were out, then closed the door and walked up to the front porch. I gazed at him curiously, but he avoided my eyes. Since we had left the cemetery the sheriff had been unusually brisk, courteous and efficient, es-

Dr. Jarrett said in a strained voice, "I didn't touch him, I swear."

Van Horn turned to me. "Mr. Bennett, I think we had better talk with the mortician—what is his name?"

"Tweed," I said.

"Wilbur Tweed," the sheriff added sagely. "Right across the square." He pranced to the door and opened it.

Dr. Jarrett spoke to Van Horn in an oddly quiet voice. "I will be here, if you want me. I am not a—a quack. I have helped people, delivered babies, even saved lives. I have tried hard, but I am still struggling along, after eight years. Other men in my graduating class are rich, some of them already famous. But I am still like a beginner, just out of school. It—it's not fair that I should still be practicing in coun-try communities, but in the cities I—I was—well, I settled in a city first, in Wheeling, and—"

"Yes," Dr. Van Horn's gentle voice stopped him. "I know. I started in a city, too—New York. I almost starved. It was big time. No one knew me, I knew no one. Then I went to a small town and began my career. The people came to know me—and to trust me."

"I understand," Dr. Jarrett said. "Thank you."

And then Dr. Van Horn did a strange thing. He moved to Dr. Jarrett and placed a hand on his shoulder. "I was like you once. But I got over it. You will get over it, too, in time. If you do not get that job in Pittsburgh, con-tact me. I can use you on my staff—if you are interested."

"Thank you," Dr. Jarrett said again, his lips twitching. "I'll re-member it."

Dr. Jarrett's face was still pale, but there was a new shining light in his eyes. He stood very straight and there was only the slightest cruel twitch to his thin arrogant mouth.

Van Horn turned, nodded at me and the three of us went out. The sheriff closed the door and moved away down the hall. Van Horn shook his head slowly. "I have seen it before. It is tragic, but he can still be useful. No doctor's training should ever be wasted."

"Do you believe him?" I asked.

Because I am really a cynic at heart, and because in my work I never sentimental. And the mem-ory of a bullet slamming out of the night was still with me.

"I do not know," Van Horn said slowly. "I want to believe him." He gave me a sad and oddly twist-ed smile. "Let us hear what this Mr. Tweed has to say."

French Slay 200 Arab Guerrillas in Past Two Weeks

PARIS (AP) — French troops in southern Tunisia killed more than 200 Arab guerrillas in the last two weeks in one of the most fiercely fought battles yet reported in terror-ridden North Africa, it was announced today.

The battle was reported as the National Assembly overwhelmingly approved a colonial reform pro-gram aimed at saving the situation not only in Algeria but in France's other possessions.

Premier Guy Mollet met with his cabinet today to consider the program aimed at preventing na-tive extremists in other French overseas territories not to imitate the campaign of guerrilla violence that has drenched Algeria in blood.

Final casualty figures on the Algerian battle were not yet avail-able, but French authorities es-timated as many as 230 natives may have been killed. Twenty-six were captured, along with large quanti-ties of arms and ammunition.

Three French deaths were re-ported in the Tunisian battle.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U. S.

Perry M. Shoemaker, Chamber

State Outlines Program to Train 18,000
In Radioactive Detection, Evaluation

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—State officials today outlined a two-phase program to train more than 18,000 Illinoisans in radioactive detection and evaluation by the end of 1957.

The purpose is to blanket Illinois with technically trained personnel to detect and report "radioactive fall-out" material, in event of an enemy hydrogen bomb attack.

Merle G. Moore, civil defense coordinator in the superintendent of public instruction's office, said the first phase of the program aims at training high school science teachers and others who have technical backgrounds.

These personnel, in turn, will help organize adult education classes to teach qualified persons in their home towns how to detect and evaluate radioactivity resulting from an H-bomb blast.

Moore, who is chief of radiological services for the Illinois Civil Defense Agency, too, said authorities consider it highly important that large numbers of people understand what should be done when large amounts of radioactive material appear in a community.

"The radioactive fall-out from a hydrogen bomb is a lethal threat to uninformed persons when it falls in dangerous quantities," he said.
"But it can be made no more than a nuisance to informed and properly equipped citizens."

Springfield Junior College, Lyons Junior College, Illinois State Normal University, Millikin University, and the College of St. Francis at Joliet already have instituted the training. They draw students from the schools, and technicians in surrounding counties.

Program Will Expand

Northern Illinois State College, Augustana College, Rockford College, DePaul University, Eastern Illinois State College and Southern Illinois University will begin the courses before Sept. 1.

Moore said about 20 other colleges and universities also will offer the courses during the 1956-57 school year.

In the second phase of the program, Moore said, each person trained in the college courses will teach an average of one adult education course in radiological detection.

He said more than 6,000 persons are expected to take the college courses by next January, and 12-000 "radiological monitors" will be trained, in turn, by December, 1957.

Moore said the object is to "realize an effective civil defense program for use in event of an atomic age disaster."

"We have the hydrogen and atomic bombs and we have to learn to live with them," he said. "When people know what to do in an emergency, they are not afraid of it."

Cards, Seventh Last Year, Naturally Hope For Better Season; Vinegar Bend Back

By LEO H. PETERSEN
United Press Sports Editor
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — With energetic Frank Lane installed as the new general manager and combative Freddie Hutchinson as field manager, the St. Louis Cardinals are hoping for better things this season.

The Cards finished seventh in 1955 when their pitching went sour but they hope for marked improvement in that department this year with the return from service of Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell. Mizell won 13 games for the Cardinals in 1953 before going into service and generally was rated as one of the coming stars of the game.

Also, Lane has been sounding out all other major league clubs on deals to gain pitching strength and while he hasn't come through with a grade as yet, the chances are good he will.

The Cardinals also are counting on a comeback by Frank Smith, the ex-Cincinnati relief ace who was of little value to the club last season because of a sore arm.

Blessed With Southpaws

Three left-handers will be in Hutchinson's starting rotation — Harvey Haddix and Luis Arroyo, an 11-game winner in his rookie season last year, in addition to Mizell. For right-handed starters, Hutch is banking on Tom Poholsky, Larry Jackson and Willard Schmidt.

Other possibilities include Bob Mabe, up from Houston where he

Sweet Sixteen
Or Elegant 8,
Which Is Best?

Sports Writers in Illinois Polled on Controversial Topic

By United Press

Sports editors from various parts of the state were asked by the United Press to pass judgment on the success of the controversial new Illinois high school basketball eight-team tournament held at Champaign last week.

The Illinois High School Assn. abandoned the "Sweet Sixteen" Champaign finals in favor of playing first-round "super-sectionals" at eight area sites, with the winners going to Champaign.

These were among the replies on hand today:

Jim Johnson, Rockford Register-Republic—"You have too many family newspapers as clients to print what I actually think of the eight-team setup at Champaign. In a word, the setup stinks. These are three main points of opposition:

"1. The color, excitement and quality" of the "Sweet Sixteen" obviously cannot be captured in this traditionless substitute . . . Says Some Fine Teams Absent.

"2. Fine teams, such as Galesburg, never get to compete at Champaign and no matter how often Al Willis, IHSA executive secretary insists super-sectional games are part of the state finals, they are not and never will be.

"3. Other fine teams, such as Piquetteville this year . . . must compete in what is alleged to be a state final game on its foe's home court.

"As for the pro arguments, they hold little water. So 46,000 of so fans saw these eight super-sectional games. They still didn't see a state tournament game . . . And as for the pupils missing school, there was more confusion, less rest and certainly no more studying than under the "Sweet Sixteen."

Kenny Jones, Peoria Journal-Star—"The 'Elegant Eight' finals are here to stay and nothing the writers or sportscasters say will change the pattern, which has the high approval of a great majority of the schoolmen. There are too many sensible, logical reasons for the elimination of the exhaustive, drawn-out 16-team marathon to ever expect it to return . . . Eighteen thousand more fans . . . saw the super-sectionals than could have been accommodated at Champaign . . . I'm all for the present setup, and I suspect, so, too, are the fans and educators."

Merle Jones, Southern Illinoisan—"The eight-team final of 1956 was no more popular with fans, players and coaches than it was with the state's high school principals in the spring of 1954. The principals . . . voted 369-291 in favor of retention of the "Sweet Sixteen."

Downstate wants the "Sweet Sixteen." The state's principals want it. The Directors of the Illinois High School Assn. don't want it. Their seven votes apparently outweigh the votes of 660 principals."

Says Tournay Lacked Color

Herb Jannusch, Kankakee Journal—"Like most coaches and fans, I thought the eight-team tournament lacked the color and interest previous tournaments had. Contrary to claims of the IHSA, the super-sectional did not permit more fans to see the first-round games. Many times the 45,000 or so who saw the games at eight widely scattered sites would have been able to see these eight games via television . . . from Huff Gym . . . and they would have seen all 16 teams . . ."

Howard Millard, Decatur Review—"For years we have been told the principals run the IHSA, yet the board of control failed to recognize their majority wish to retain the popular "Sweet Sixteen" tournament. Neither do a majority of coaches or players desire a bot-tailed state tournament and after all, if the set up can be justified it has to be on the grounds it is a student activity."

Big Question: Can Louisville Win from Dayton Third Time?

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Invitation tournament heads into the final round Saturday afternoon with the big, burning question: Can Louisville beat Dayton a third straight time with the title at stake?

The odds-men say "No," and make top-seeded Dayton a very slight favorite.

But a lot of experts say "Yes," and tab second-seeded Louisville as the coming champion.

A crowd of 16,125 that saw both score easy victories in Thursday night's semi-final round at Madison Square Garden came away baffled. First they watched Louisville pull 22 points in front and breeze home, 89-79, over St. Joseph's of Philadelphia. Dayton would have to go some to match that.

But the Flyers more than matched this showing by crushing St. Francis of Brooklyn in the other semi-final, 89-58.

College Coaches Don't Want 24-Second Rule

CHICAGO (AP) — Statistics released today showed there was little need for a "24-second maximum team possession rule" in college basketball.

College basketball coaches said they didn't want a limit imposed forcing their players to shoot at the basket within a specified time after they obtain possession of the ball.

Dons Drop SMU, Now Face Iowans

Championship of NCAA Will Be Decided Tonight

San Francisco Out to Win Big Title for Second Straight Year

By ED SAINSBURY
United Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Unbeaten San Francisco and Big Ten champion Iowa, two basketball teams with dogged defensives, tangle tonight for the big cage prize—the NCAA championship—with the defending champion Dons a slight favorite to win.

San Francisco rolled over Southwest conference champion Southern Methodist with ease in the semi-finals Thursday night, 86-68, as forward Mike Farmer netted 26 points in the Dons 54th straight win.

Center Bill Logan set a personal record with 36 points to pace Coach Bucky O'Connor's Iowans to its 17th straight, 83-76, over Temple.

Good Shooting Eye

Both Iowa and San Francisco won Thursday night because of better shooting and rebounding. The Hawkeyes hit a 41 per cent pace from the field and grabbed 51 rebounds to 39 per cent and 47 rebounds for Temple.

The Dons hit a 46 per cent clip from the field and garnered 49 rebounds, with Bill Russell pulling in 23. The Mustangs shot 36 per cent with 39 rebounds.

Iowa's victory resulted chiefly from excellence at the free throw line. Temple committed 23 fouls and the Hawks, who netted only 29 field goals, collected 25 points on 38 gift tosses. Iowa fouled only 14 times and Temple, with 35 field goals, got six free throws in 17 tries.

Owls' Guards Star

Two terrific shooting guards, Hal Lear and Guy Rodgers, sparked a last minute rally for Temple which nearly converted the Owls' fourth loss of the season into the 27th win. Lear shot 50 per cent from the field and scored 32 points while Rodgers contributed 28 points.

Their last minute surge pulled Temple from a 12 point deficit with seven minutes to play to only three points with three minutes remaining.

San Francisco sailed to a 21 point lead in the first half but thereafter appeared to coast against the Mustangs, whose 19 game winning streak was broken by the defeat. The Mustangs came within seven points three times in the last half but on each occasion the Dons potted two or three quick baskets for a comfortable margin.

Russell, an All-America for the past two years, was a standout as usual. He bagged 17 points but he cleared the boards consistently and ruined numerous shots by Jim Krebs, who finished as the Mustangs' leading scorer with 24 points.

Looking At Sports

By BILL MELTON

The Harlem Globetrotters have always had a big following among basketball fans in these parts, as well as throughout the world. But it may be that local area fans will have a particular interest in one player before many seasons roll around.

Oliver Rollins, "The Big Cat" from Carrier Mills, has attracted the attention of Globetrotter scouts and will have an opportunity to make the grade with the famous court organization, according to information received today.

My informant said letters and telephone calls had been received from Carrier Mills from the Trotters' office in Chicago inquiring about Rollins and a definite interest has been shown.

According to present plans, Rollins will go to Chicago sometime this spring for an interview and tryout.

It's a long step from high school ball to the Globetrotters. But Rollins has been a long striding, fast stepping player and maybe he will be one of those players who can do it.

One thing sure—he will have the best wishes of practically every basketball fan in southern Illinois.

Lingle Begins 30th Year as
SIU Track Coach

Leland P. (Doc) Lingle

CARBONDALE, Ill.—Leland P. (Doc) Lingle this week begins his 30th year as head track coach at Southern Illinois university.

SIU's track history can actually be traced back to Lingle's coming to Southern in 1927—the first year SIU had a regular track schedule. Prior to that time Southern had had only two track meets, a conference meet at McKendree College in 1916 and the other at old Ewing College in 1925.

As a faculty assistant, Lingle took over track in 1927. Actually, Lingle has been connected with Southern Illinois university as either a student or faculty member since 1919.

During the past 29 years Lingle has won numerous conference championships and has compiled an overall dual meet mark of 107 victories compared to only 30 losses. He's done even better in triangular meets, capturing 10 and dropping two, giving him an impressive dual-triangular 29-year record of 117 wins, 32 losses—a .785 percentage.

College Coaches Don't Want 24-Second Rule

CHICAGO (AP) — Statistics released today showed there was little need for a "24-second maximum team possession rule" in college basketball.

College basketball coaches said they didn't want a limit imposed forcing their players to shoot at the basket within a specified time after they obtain possession of the ball.

Grid Scholarship
To Murray State

RONNIE WILLIAMS

MURRAY, Ky.—Ronnie Williams of Harrisburg, Ill., has accepted a football scholarship at Murray State college for next year, announces Head Coach Jim Sullivan.

Williams plays center and will be giving the Racers support in a vital spot. The team currently has just one experienced center.

Williams, now a senior at Harrisburg Township high school, was one of the most versatile linemen to play football at HTHS in recent years. Besides being a top center, he also played at tackle, defensive end and linebacker.

Also a basketball player, Williams was voted the most valuable player on the Bull Dog cage squad the past year.

30th Year as
SIU Track Coach

Leland P. (Doc) Lingle

CARBONDALE, Ill.—Leland P. (Doc) Lingle this week begins his 30th year as head track coach at Southern Illinois university.

SIU's track history can actually be traced back to Lingle's coming to Southern in 1927—the first year SIU had a regular track schedule. Prior to that time Southern had had only two track meets, a conference meet at McKendree College in 1916 and the other at old Ewing College in 1925.

As a faculty assistant, Lingle took over track in 1927. Actually, Lingle has been connected with Southern Illinois university as either a student or faculty member since 1919.

During the past 29 years Lingle has won numerous conference championships and has compiled an overall dual meet mark of 107 victories compared to only 30 losses. Rickey Touch Cost $2,300,000;
Groat Only Bonus Baby to Click

FORT MYERS, Fla.—(NEA)—Branch Rickey hardly left Pittsburgh in a hilarious state of excitement when he said goodbye . . . to be chairman of the Pirates' board of directors and adviser at $50,000, instead of $100,000, a year.

Mahatma Rickey's five-year building plan resulted in a dead loss of $2,300,000.

What's worse, there isn't much in Fort Myers, where on the bank of the Caloosahatchie River, Bobby Bragan is trying to put the breath of life back into the Buccaneers.

Unable to purchase players and possessing nothing out of the very ordinary to trade, General Manager Rickey went directly to the present source of supply—the colleges and high schools. Rickey enjoyed phenomenal success operating in this fashion in St. Louis and Brooklyn, so had carte blanche from his old friend, John W. Galbreath.

The result was that he threw bonuses around like ticker tape in a lower 8-oadway parade—$49,000 the first year, $750,000 in all. Thirty or more young men whom Rickey and his scouts considered prize prospects were obtained in this way.

What hurts most is that the bonus babies, with the exception of Dick Groat, a journeyman shortstop, could be a complete washout. Times have changed. The other clubs were on the scent. Harvey Kuenen and Al Kaline went to Detroit, for example. Rickey, not getting any younger, had lost the touch. The scouting system fell down. Scouts no longer confined themselves to what the youngster showed. They were more concerned about what others bid.

There are no more than eight of the 30 bonus players toiling in this pretty town that was the winter home of Thomas A. Edison, and, as stated in the foregoing, only Groat is for sure. The others have been assigned to minor league affiliates and forgotten.

There is hope for Johnny O'Brien at second base, but his brother, Eddie, does not hit enough to be an outfielder. Fly-chaser Lee Walls swatted a long ball in the Pacific Coast League, but is anything but a phenomenon. The others are pitchers—Dick Hall, Laurin Pepper, Paul Martin and Red Swanson. Two days after signing for $25,000, young Swanson switched from the Sporting News to the Wall Street Journal.

The Buccaneers are further handicapped by having to carry six bonus lads who are of little use. There are no more than seven or eight pitching jobs open because of this situation. The front line player shortage won't be relieved until June, when the required time on the parent club ends for three of the bonus babies.

After the baseball man leaves the camps of the Yankees and Dodgers, he has an empty feeling. In Fort Myers, he actually suffers from the pangs of hunger.

The Downstate
Fisherman's Guide

By Pete Brown

(From reports by the Southern Illinois University Cooperative Fisheries Research Laboratory and the Illinois State Department of Conservation)

Isolated and light catches of crappie, bass and bullhead marked southern Illinois fishing for another week, with excessive rain and unstable weather blamed for the meager results.

A few anglers picked up some crappie and bullhead at Horseshoe Lake at the beginning of the week, and a few more bass were creelied at Crab Orchard and Little Grassy Lakes. Lake Murphysboro remained quiet.

A Saturday check of fishermen returning to Crab Orchard's Play Port Dock (representative of about 40 percent of the total boat-fishing on the lake for the day) revealed the following results: One 13-inch largemouth; one six-inch largemouth; two five-inch yellow bass; 11 nine-inch crappie and three four-inch crappie. The day was partly cloudy, cool and windy. The bass and crappie were caught on minnows.

A report that trotline fishing is producing bullheads at Horseshoe Lake and Crab Orchard might make pertinent a few early-season remarks about this technique.

First, the legal qualifications embracing trotline fishing.

According to the book, the regular $1 resident hook and line license permits you to use a trotline device not exceeding 50 hooks. The hooks may be distributed among bouys, bank poles, throw lines or any other ganging methods. For anything over 50 and up to 100 hooks, the fisherman must buy a trotline license, which costs $1.10 (a dime for paperwork). A metal tag is included with the license, and it must be attached to the line.

For any number of hooks over 100 and up to 200, another license is required, and so on. A license for each 100 hooks, in other words.

And, of course, "It shall be unlawful to drag, pull or move through the water any trot, set or throw line in such a manner as to snare or cause hooks to be drawn into the body of the fish (Sec. 25-08, Illinois game and fish codes).

Trotline fishing is commonly pursued with a rig consisting of a length of heavy cord, such as staling line, with one-foot drop-lines somewhat lighter (20 pound test) tied at five foot intervals. The lines are usually equipped with 6.0 hooks.

The best practice for setting up the trotline is to stretch the main line, using a slipknot to attach the drop-lines, then baiting the hooks.

Drop-lines should be stored in the bottom of a box with the hooks set in the top edge of the box.

Trotline baits, in order of preference among bullhead, flathead and channel cat fishermen, are crayfish, pieces of gizzard shad, worms and frozen shrimp.

Since trotline fishing is usually most productive at night, the fisherman should put out his lines in the late afternoon, setting them on the bottom in water two to four feet deep. Two or three rocks may be used to hold the line down, and a float is sometimes employed to mark the location.

Run the lines every two hours, removing the catches by un-slipping the drop-line, and re-baiting. Better trotline havens in southern Illinois include Horseshoe, Little Grassy, Crab Orchard, the Carbondale City reservoir, the upper waters of the Big Muddy river, and the Kaskaskia river and some tributaries.

Illinois conservation department field men dumped 1,500 six to 12 inch channel catfish into Lake Harrisburg March 8. Another 300 went into the Galatia reservoir.

Need for More Men Teachers Cited

CHICAGO (U)—The key to solving the teacher shortage lies in attracting more men into the profession, in the opinion of a National Education Association official.

T. M. Stinnett, executive secretary of the NEA's commission on teacher education and professional standards, said ways must be found to make teaching more attractive economically and to raise the profession's prestige in the eyes of men.

"The holding power of a profession made up three-to-one of women will always be weak," Stinnett told a meeting of school administrators here, "because women leave it to have families."

He said "we lose eight to 10 per cent of our teaching force each year," compared to a three per cent loss in the medical profession.

Stinnett said men leave teaching, or decide against entering it chiefly for economic reasons. But he said they also question its prestige.

Horsepower Race in Auto Industry Increases License Revenue for State

SPRINGFIELD (U)—The auto industry's "horsepower race" is paying off in increased revenue for the state of Illinois.

Auto license fees are assessed on the basis of horsepower, figured on a British horsepower rating formula.

The Illinois fees are $6.50 for cars under 25 horsepower, $10.50 for 25-35 horsepower, $17 for 35-50 horsepower, and $22 for 50 or more horsepower.

Revenue from passenger car registrations has increased from $19,935,110 in 1949 to $32,333,192 in 1955, a span of years which embraces the trend toward higher-powered automobiles.

An increase in total registration from 2,070,583 in 1949 to 2,858,869 in 1955, accounts for part of the increase.

William B. Westbrook, chief clerk in the automobile department in the secretary of state's office, said the increase in the number of autos registered at the $17 and $22 fees shows how the horsepower race is adding to Illinois revenues.

In 1949, there were only 77,410 cars registered for a full year at the $17 fee, plus 7,040 for which a half-year fee was paid after July 1.

This soared to 541,877 for the whole year and 39,801 for a half year in 1955.

Rule Property Of Legion Posts Is Not Tax Exempt

SPRINGFIELD (U)—The Illinois Supreme Court today held that an American Legion post property is not exempt from taxation.

The ruling apparently would apply to property of other veterans organizations.

The decision overruled the Cook County Superior Court, which held that American Legion property was tax exempt. The case concerned the levying of taxes from 1948-51 against the Rogers Park Post No. 108, which owns a $140,000 two-story building which contains an auditorium.

The court said the primary use of the property was patriotic and social, and it was only incidentally used for charitable purposes as required for tax exemption.
